Contact for pricing

With detachable bracket

The Altec Lansing 9844A, introduced in the 1970s, is a studio monitor speaker renowned for its exceptional audio clarity and power. It features a large rectangular cabinet with a distinctive horn-loaded design at the bottom, a woven fabric grille covering the speaker, and a sturdy gray wooden frame. This speaker was widely used in recording studios and professional audio settings, valued for its accurate sound reproduction.

Perfect for film or TV sets depicting recording studios, radio stations, or high-fidelity audio environments from the 1970s to the 1980s, the Altec Lansing 9844A adds an authentic period detail to any production.
