

Scan w/camera phone

Medium Format Film Camera

Contact for pricing

The Kodak Brownie Holiday Camera, introduced in October 1953, is a compact and straightforward viewfinder camera made of Bakelite, designed by Arthur H. Crapsey. It was available in both a non-flash version and a flash version, the latter produced until April 1962. This camera uses 127 film and was popular for its ease of use and affordability, making it a favorite among amateur photographers.

---

from Fennick Studio Props in Passaic, NJ

Size 4" w × 3" h × 3" d

Qty 1

Condition Good

SKU AV2105

Questions? Call (212) 688-6720

or email sales@fennicknyc.com

Go to this item on fennicknyc.com