

Scan w/camera phone

Microscope

Contact for pricing

This Wild Heerbrugg stereo microscope looks like it was designed in a bunker and built to survive a nuclear winter. Introduced in the 1960s, it became a staple in research labs, defense facilities, and anywhere precision trumped comfort. The granite base doesn't just say "science", it says "don't even think about tipping me over." Cold War energy, lab rat accuracy.

---

from Fennick Studio Props in Passaic, NJ

Size 8" w × 16" h × 16" d

Qty 1

Condition Good

SKU 01449

Questions? Call (212) 688-6720

or email sales@fennicknyc.com

Go to this item on fennicknyc.com