The Zetron Model 26 Fire Station Dispatcher is a multi-functional communication unit designed for dispatching and coordinating emergency responses, particularly for fire stations. The control panel includes dedicated buttons for station alarms, fire and medical alerts, house lights, and PA systems, among others. Its clear labeling and multiple station setup make it ideal for managing emergency communications efficiently across different locations.

This device would be well-suited for movie or TV sets depicting fire stations, emergency response centers, or dispatch operations, particularly in productions set from the late 20th century to present day, adding authenticity to technical or operational scenes.
