Functional

This 1959 Fender Champ 5F1 Tweed amplifier is a 5-watt tube amp with a single 8-inch speaker, producing the classic "tweed tone" that musicians and recording engineers from the 1950s prized. Its simple design includes just one volume knob and two input jacks, with the 6V6 power tube, 12AX7 preamp tube, and 5Y3 rectifier tube. Covered in the signature tweed, this amp delivers a smooth, overdriven sound that defined many iconic blues and rock recordings of the era. Ideal for film or TV sets depicting mid-century music studios, live performances, or musician spaces, this amp adds an authentic period detail
