Functional

The Sharp Linytron Plus Television is a model introduced around 1976. It was part of Sharp's line of portable color televisions, featuring the "Linytron" technology, which was known for delivering enhanced picture quality. This particular model was designed for convenience, including features like a carrying handle and telescopic antennas, making it a popular choice for home use during the late 1970s.

This TV would be ideal for movie or TV sets depicting homes from the late 1970s to early 1980s.
