This is a nice example of the 1990's "big office".
These were used in Government Offices, FBI, large Police Stations, Hospitals, and large companies.
The IBM "PC" was not yet popular for business software, so this was the choice in larger companies. Each of these would have been hooked up to a large HP Server which could be located on premises in a clean room, or off-site.
We have Servers available if you need them!
We have 100 pcs of this.
Ideal for large office scenes, bull pens, cubicles, etc.
They do light up but there's not much to see on them because technology was limited back then, and it was driven by the software that came from the server.
Beautiful shape and look.
Ideal for dressing, or you can green screen them.
Era: Introduced 1992. In use thru 2012
Qty: 100 pcs
Color: As shown, putty/pearl white
(we work within your budget!)
